CALCULATING FUNERAL EXPENSES

Step 1: Determine the Type of Disposition.

There are basically two types of disposition, either burial or cremation.

Step 2: Determine the Type of Ceremony you would like.

Some families desire a traditional service with viewing and a church or chapel ceremony. While others opt for a simple committal service.

Step 3: Select Merchandise

Select the appropriate merchandise for the type of disposition you have selected. For example, burial will require a casket made of either metal or wood and an outer burial container. While those families selecting cremation will want to look at wood caskets or alternative containers and urns. There are also stationary items that you will need, such as a register book, memorial folders and thank you cards.

Step 4: Calculate the Outside Expenses.

These are expenses that are associated with the funeral, but are not necessarily charges from the funeral home, such as; death certificates, Cemetery fees, flowers, obituaries, printing costs, honorariums, travel Expenses, etc. Many funeral homes will allow these charges to be placed on the funeral homes bill as a matter of convenience. However, it is unlikely that the funeral home will allow these charges to be written on a pre-funded funeral plan. Therefore, if you are pre-paying your funeral expenses please be aware that these expense will have to be paid when death occurs.

Note : Many funeral homes group their services and merchandise into packages most often chosen by the families they serve. These packages are generally discounted from their itemized prices and therefore reflect a greater value to the purchaser.
