

Dipa Prince

July 21, 1973 - August 15, 2019

Dipa Prince, a loving daughter, beautiful wife, superstar mother, and wonderful friend, passed away after a long, tenacious battle with Leukemia on August 15th. Growing up in East London, Dipa worked at her family-owned business, until moving to the US and helping once again with her family's business.

Dipa next began living the 'American dream' after meeting her soon-to-be husband, John. The two of them travelled for a few years before starting a family, which was Dipa's ultimate desire in life. Consequently, she gave birth to two wonderful children, and devoted her time, day and night, to ensure they were without want, and essentially she became the central piece to the homestead. She was heavily involved with her children as it pertained to school in addition to extracurricular activities such as Girl Scouts, youth athletics, and quickly became a figurehead both loved and respected by all in her community.

Dipa and family moved in to her dream home in 2012 where she continued as the centralized, beacon of love for her family and friends, quickly becoming one of the most beloved figures in her community. She will be missed by all who graced her presence.

Dipa is survived by her husband, John Prince, son, Andrew Prince, daughter, Alex Prince, parents Rameshbai and Ushaben Patel, brother Vijay Patel, and sister Priya Desai, along with many others relatives whose hearts she touched. Truly a special person, Dipa will be missed by all.

“ This morning at 6:19am, I sent a text to my daughter. I was not feeling well, and described it like "my soul was being pulled out of my body". This feeling only lasted ~30 seconds.

Later in the day I realized it had been exactly one week since she passed (and the days have become more painful for me)...and was a little disappointed a did not I did not observe her passing at the exact time of her death. So I reflected and wondered..."What was I doing this morning around 6:20..." and I turned white. Asked my daighter, 'what tome did I send the text this morning?' She confirmed 6:19am.

I've spent the day wondering what is was and what it meant. From the bottom of my heart I believe it was her nudging me saying "Ahem....hello? Are you forgetting something?"

She used to tell me if she went first she would haunt me. I would respond with "I'd rather you haunt me then be without you any day" I meant it then as much as I do now. My God I miss her so much. It's been AT LEAST 27 years since I've gone this long without taking to her in the flesh. We met so young but had NO DOUBT we would be together until God tool one of us away. She and I knew that we would be together in the afterlife, She was Hindu and I Christian. Whether we are both reincarnated again to be life long partners, or we kick in Heaven for the rest of eternity...I have no doubt she is waiting to take me by the hand when it's my turn. No doubt. Until then, RIP honey,

“ She took such good care of us here during this visit. We brought in Indian Food and got to eat in our private dining room.

She kept wanting to set the table and feed us all. We made her sit down, but each time we turned away she was up again putting more food on our plates. She had such tremendous energy and was so maternal to us During the times she was unable it really bothered her, and that was when she 'fought against' her disease the most. Almost like she mustered up special energy to look after us. It was one of her ways to show us her love and it was hard for anyone to surpass. It hurt her SO much when she was able to be what she viewed as productive...We told her just sitting with us is productive for her based on what she had been through. . It gives me joy to know she is having such a well deserved rest right now. We both know our souls will be connected again one day.

“ Unfortunately she was never able to see the text with the video. Her dog Winston made her as happy as anything in this world, over and over again. In fact she told me once she hopes she 'goes before Winston does as I don't think I could handle it', she would take it as hard as her own child leaving her....so at least she will never have to experience that pain.

When she came home after her transplant he sat on her lap and would never take his eye off her...just like he did before she left. He is a true mommy's dog. :-)

“ This is Dipa's husband, and I want to thank everyone who came out to her funeral today...it was truly one of the most special days of my life. As I looked at the audience I noted what a perfect grouping of races, creeds,denominations,, etc . If she and I were to plan out the perfect funeral, this would be itp. I cannot thank you enough for sharing this memory with me.
Once I get settled, I will post on here some highlights of her life to help keep her memory alive with you all, in addition to providing some insights you might not be aware of, including her final moments in this world, and the inspiration that it brings.

“ Dipa was the sweetest person. When she was going through her own battle, she took her time to help my mom out with my moms own battle with cancer. It meant so much. The world lost someone that was one of a kind. I am so sorry.

“ We lost our beautiful Dipa way too soon. She was the daughter we never had and a true warrior. Through all her pain and suffering the smile never left her face. She was an example to all who her knew her. We will miss her so much. We loved her with all her heart

How is it that I never saw your wings when you were here with me?
When you closed your eyes and soared to the Heavens I could hear the faint flutter of you wings as you left.
Your body no longer on this side
your spirit here eternally I see your halo shine.
I close my eyes and see the multi-colored wings surround me in my saddest moments and my happiest times..
You earned those wings dear daughter and you will always be me angel eternal.

“ Dipa was going through her journey and then I discovered I had a journey myself. She was uplifting and always positive. It breaks my heart that she is not here on earth but her soul, energy and vibes surround all of us. Her children were her heart. She so loved her family. My prayers are with all of you.
